

THE ELIZABETH MCCALL AWARD

The Elizabeth McCall Award was established to honour inspirational member Elizabeth McCall who died as a result of a tragic accident outside her school on Thursday, 27 April 2006.

Elizabeth, who was a highly respected teacher at St Peter's Primary School, Rochedale, was an extraordinary woman who made a remarkable contribution in all aspects of her life including her union community to which she was dedicated and passionately committed.

Elizabeth touched the lives of many people with her warmth, her quiet dignity and her passion for social justice. In all she did she sought the best for others and her selfless dedication will remain an inspiration to us all.

She will be remembered as a warm and caring teacher, a dear friend, a committed and active unionist, a loving mother to her two sons, Sam and Tom, and a soul mate to her husband Mark.

For Elizabeth her union activism was very much part of her wider commitment to achieving social justice. Elizabeth believed in truth above all else.

In the light of Elizabeth's contribution to her union and her pursuit of social justice issues our union council decided to establish an ongoing award in her memory.

The award is for a woman who demonstrates a fundamental commitment to the principles of unionism and gives expression to the pursuit of social justice issues.

The award may be given to more than one woman in any given year.

AWARD CRITERIA

A recipient of the Elizabeth McCall Award will:

- 1. Demonstrate a fundamental commitment to the principles of unionism by:
 - Actively building membership strength and a strong collective voice;
 - Being educated about the issues impacting her and her colleagues and what they can do about them;
 - Building a collective culture and supporting her colleagues in her workplace to achieve fair and just outcomes.

- 2. Actively encourage the expression of the voice of the collective in the pursuit of social justice issues by:
 - Working to bring social justice issues to the attention of her colleagues and seeking to inspire and educate others through her own example;
 - Recognising the importance of educating for social justice and inspiring students in her care to investigate issues they care deeply about;
 - Taking action to promote social justice and fairness by standing alongside like-minded colleagues;
 - Recognising our union's capacity to achieve social justice.
